

Mobility & Wireless

IT in the hands of your people

Give your increasingly mobile workforce faster access to time-critical information, and you'll reap the benefits of increased productivity, improved decision-making, and accelerated customer responsiveness. With the right wireless technology and mobility solutions, your sales force can, for example, quickly access current product and shipment information, manage e-mail from their mobile phone or access up-to-date sales literature – from anywhere in the field.

Wireless LANs

The wireless LAN has redefined what it means to be connected. It has stretched the boundaries of the local-area network introducing "mobility". It makes an infrastructure as dynamic as it needs to be, and it's only just starting. Businesses have a growing need to provide constant information access to mobile employees, such as those meeting in conference rooms or public areas. Wireless LAN technology, besides providing mobility, also allows the flexibility to provide networking in areas that are difficult to wire.

Personal Connectivity

Wireless technology revolutionises the personal connectivity market by providing freedom from wired connections – enabling links between mobile computers, mobile phones, portable handheld devices, and instant connectivity to the Internet. Bluetooth seamlessly connects all of your enabled devices, and GPRS provides a permanently on connection to data networks, anytime, anyplace – creating unprecedented productivity.

Mobile Messaging

Unified messaging solutions allow your employees to deal with their messages in the most efficient and productive way. Instead of spending time picking up messages, running from the fax machine to desk, users can spend their time attending to their customers' needs. You can even send, forward, delete emails all without a PC.
